

DISK FRAGMENTATION TEST SYSTEM

ABSTRACT

Disclosed is a method for preparing a disk drive of a computing system for test, including the steps of recording a plurality of test files to a partition of the disk drive until a free space of the partition is less than a predetermined value; and thereafter deleting a portion of the plurality of test files from the partition. A computer program product including a computer readable medium carrying a program for preparing a disk drive of a computing system for test, the computer program product having code for recording a plurality of test files to a partition of the disk drive until a free space of the partition is less than a predetermined value; and code for deleting a portion of the plurality of test files from the partition.